HEALTH OF SCHOOL CHILDREN A state-wide movement to more carefully supervise the health of the children attending the rural schools in Ohio will be launched as a result of the report of the Ohio State School Survey Commission.

As a result of the strong recommendation made in the report on effective mode in the report on effective mode in the report on effective mode in the report of the strong recommendations.

mendations made in the report, an ef-fort will be made to extend a modi-fied form of medical and dental supervision of school children into even the most remote school district of the The movement will have the hearty support of the state school authorities, the state board of health, the Ohio State Medical Association, and the Ohio State Dental Society, as well as the other public health organiza-tions according to a writer in the February number of the Ohio State Medical Journal.

Under a plan recommended by the school survey commission teachers will act as medical and dental inspectors in the smaller communities, where the school board is not willing or able to employ school physicians and dentists. Every rural school teacher will be furnished with a questionnaire. These contain a number of questions so stated as to bring out physical defects in the child which the teacher has under consideration. For instance, to determine the child's nose and throat conditions, the teacher is asked to answer the questions: Does the child ordinarily breathe with the mouth closed; has the child a well developed chin; has he frequent "colds"; is he usually free from complaints of sore throat, etc. Similar sets of questions are asked relative to the teeth, eyes, tonsils, ears, nervous conditions mentality, etc. A report of these conditions is made in the case of each child and made in the case of each child and made in the case of each child and more than doubled in less than several imports? So much has been said and printed about the very independent way pupils in school now spell-of course, there were always bad spellers—that the reason for it should be known. A dozen or more years ago a new method of teaching spelling was devised and from one end of our educator-ridden country to the other was practiced and favorably reported on. It was called "visualiziation," and meant that a mental picture was certainly impressed on "the child's" mind by merely looking at the word. It never occurred to the visualizers that "the child" had always looked at the word, and that the drill they proposed to do away with was all there was to the
